- CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER

Education:

- BA, University of Southern California
- MBA, Loyola Marymount University
- MA, Broad Residency in Urban Education

Chief Financial Officer Nolberto Delgadillo joined the Tulsa Public Schools team in summer 2017 to strategically align district resources to support instructional outcomes.

Prior to joining Tulsa Public Schools, Nolberto served as chief operations officer at LA Promise Fund, a nonprofit, charter management organization dedicated to preparing Los Angeles students for long-term success. In this role, he planned and directed all aspects of LA Promise Fund's operations including financial integrity, human resources, legal compliance, and information technology.

Nolberto also work with Green Dot Public schools where his focused was on collaborating directly with school administrators to improve their academic bandwidth as he focused on the operations and finances for their schools. Before moving into public education, Nolberto spent over 12 years in the healthcare sector primarily in the fields of operations, marketing, finance, client and project management.

Nolberto holds a BA in chemistry and Spanish from the University of Southern California and earned his MBA from Loyola Marymount University. In addition, he completed a rigorous two year leadership program culminating with a master's degree in educational leadership from The Broad Residency in Urban Education.

Outside of work, Nolberto's focus is completely dedicated to his wife and two sons, whether it's bike riding, playing video games or reading stories, they take the lead.

"Education for me is the great social equalizer. I grew up in Compton, California and have experienced it first-hand. Now, I want to pay it forward."
